

E-LEARNING

E-learning is growing in importance all the time. Many types of training material readily lend themselves to being produced in E-learning format. E-learning can make training materials come alive by using technology to transform the learning experience. Through such interactive training, the whole learning experience can be enhanced.

If you need to have any E-learning materials translated into other languages, please come to us to discuss your requirements. We can advise you on particular issues that may be encountered when putting E-learning materials into other languages. As an example, you need to allow extra time for the spoken word in certain other languages.

Case Study

A customer came to us with a difficult problem. Our customer was in the Food sector and needed to employ temporary workers from Eastern and Southern Europe to cope with their very busy summer season. A lot of the people they employed had either no English or, at best, a very limited knowledge.

As these workers would need to use some heavy machinery or be in close proximity to such machinery, it was vital that information about Health and Safety should be properly communicated to them.

Our customer commissioned a video to cover all their Health and Safety procedures and to provide training for these workers in how to work safely with the heavy machinery.

Comms Multilingual firstly translated the video script into 6 different languages. We then recorded the script and inserted the language voices over the English voice. The video was a great success and there was an immediate decrease in H&S issues for this particular organisation.

Comms Multilingual is the ideal partner for handling the translation, voice-recording and sub-titling of your E-learning materials.

Please contact us for further information:

Tel: 0845 2960024 (in the UK, local call rate)

Tel: +44(0)1372 209936

Fax: +44(0)1372 744382

info@commsmultilingual.com

www.commsmultilingual.com